FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

An Uninteresting Day in Wall Street.

STOCKS TENDING DOWNWARD

The Influence of Pools, Paid Rumors and "Match Orders."

MONEY EASY.

Gold Steady - Government and Railroad Bonds Firm.

WALL STREET, WEDNESDAY, Jan. 28-6 P. M. There have been few occasions in the history of Wall street when so much chicanery and ingenuity have been employed to effect a condition that would permit cliques to unload stock. We have had reports from Washington frothy, full of false-hood and sent to deceive. Certain members of Congress appear to be so much identified with speculation that they do not hesitate to put in bills and resolutions which enable them to turn "an est penny" as the result. Under instructions from their employers here, we are permitted from day to day to read concerning them the most exrdinary reports. From what we know, these manations are in the interest of cliques, who are idesvoring to make a market on which to sell tocks. The natural unaided tone of the market however, is not promising. For more than ten days DEPRESSING INFLUENCES been apparent. Since Thursday, one week ago, there has been no recovery, but, on the contrary, a persistent struggle to hold prices and a persistent decline in the fight. Figures assert the act. When pools are forced to give "match orders:" when the whole street discusses what are supposed to be "secrets;" when the holders of winning cards are picked out and popularly named and talked about in business circles; when the home and country speculator gets away from the "tape" which he has watched for days and says, strally, "I've had enough of this;" when the market generally bears evidence of washing and soap suds, and there is fraud in the air, it is but natural that decline should follow, and the few cople who are manipulating prices should learn ns at their own cost. This is what is going on. The battle is not to the strong. Prices are dowly declining—yielding to dead weights. Stock eas a certain kind of

SPECIFIC GRAVITY, which they intelligently obey, and the process of pedience is being enforced. Analytically considthe stock market, with one or two excepsions, closes lower than it opened, and in the main a shade lower than the closing prices of yeserday. Responsive to the news from Washingto there was a slight rally towards the close, but the general tone was that of a settling down, ranging om % to % per cent. The following are
